Which direction should a locker room door be placed?

Place the door of the locker room in the North or East direction as per locker Vastu. The room should not have doors in the South-East, South-West, North-West and the South direction. For the windows, they should preferably remain in the East and North directions in this room. Colours also have a story of their own concerning one's locker Vastu.

Which direction should a locker be in?

The simple answer is it should be in the north direction, i.e., the back of the locker should be in the south direction and the door should open in the north. Best Direction of Locker As Per Vastu?

How do you place a locker in a room?

Make sure that your locker does not stick directly to the wall and that there is a gap of at least an inch or so. Also, keep in mind that the locker is a foot away from the North-West or South-West corner. If enough space is not available in the room, then one can also place the locker in the East direction, says Ganesha.

How many doors should a locker have?

According to Vastu Shastra, the locker should always be kept at least one inch ahead of the wall except in the southeast and southwest corners. The room where the locker is kept should have only one entrance. Apart from this, the main door in this room should be made of two doors.

Which direction should a locker be positioned according to Vastu?

The locker direction as per Vastu should be in the South direction of the room. The backside of the locker should be towards the South wall whereas the front side of the locker should face the North wall. This is an ideal position for a locker to be at. The shape of the locker room should be square or rectangular according to the Locker Vastu.
