While solar panels in Georgia are relatively pricey, the savings over 25 years can add up to $23,182. That can make it well worth going solar.

Are solar panels a good investment in Georgia?

Solar power is blooming in the Peach State. Georgians use more energy every month than most Americans, which means installing solar panels in the area is more beneficial from a financial perspective than in most states. However, the high solar panel cost in Georgia can be a deterrent for many homeowners.

How much do solar panels cost?

The cost of solar panels in Georgia is currently lower than the average price of $3.00 per watt across the United States for residential solar power systems. The size of a solar panel system affects the installation cost, with larger installations having a lower cost per watt due to 'bulk pricing'.

What tax credits do solar panels get in Georgia?

The federal solar investment tax credit (ITC) is the biggest factor reducing the cost of going solar in Georgia. If you install a residential solar panel system by the end of 2032, you receive a federal income tax credit equal to 30% of the system's total cost. That includes equipment, labor and permits.

Does Georgia pay taxes on solar installation?

The cost of installing renewable energy systems in Georgia, including solar, is supported by the federal solar investment tax credit. This tax credit amounts to 30% of the value of the solar system and is claimed on your taxes in the year following installation.

Should you buy a solar battery in Georgia?

You can store free solar energy for use when your panels stop producing, maximizing your savings over time. This is particularly beneficial in areas with higher energy costs, like Atlanta. Batteries also let you maintain power through blackouts, which are common in Georgia due to the extreme weather.
