No one around here is going to pretend this is the fun part of the job, but it is absolutely one of the most important. Our consultants have a long history with regulatory matters and have represented our clients before state utility commissions and federal regulatory bodies, frequently providing expert witness testimony related to cost of service, revenue requirement, rate design, etc.

Engineering. Engineering covers a lot of territory around here. Our highly experienced in-house team of engineers consistently communicates with the architectural and consulting disciplines to ensure all considerations are incorporated into designs from day one.
