How do I get to Battersea Power Station?

Travelling by bike is an excellent way to get to and from Battersea Power Station. There is a Transport for London Cycle Hire stand (Santander Cycles) in Grosvenor Arch, named Battersea Power Station Battersea Park in the cycle scheme listings. There is another stand a few hundred metres away named Sopwith Way Battersea Park.

How much does it cost to lift up Battersea Power Station?

Overpriced and underwhelming. On impulse we paid the £23.60 to get the lift up to the top of one of the four iconic towers of Battersea Power Station. You get a short video introduction which was just light effects on four walls of a small room, whereas outside there were different displays telling the story of the building.

Does Battersea Power Station have car parking?

Battersea Power Station has numerous public transport connections and we are keen to keep our carbon footprint down. So if you have to come by car, please be aware there is extremely limited carparking available. The River Bus service operates from Battersea Power Station pier and runs between 21 other piers from Putney to Woolwich.
