What makes a good UPS battery backup?

Even if you're not prone to power outages, many UPS models also include surge protection features. An automatic voltage regulator smoothes over brownouts and spikes without needing to change your battery. It's one of several capabilities you'll want to look for in the best battery backups.

Do you need a battery backup?

One important part of your plan should be considering battery backups--also known as an uninterruptible power supply, or UPS--which will automatically take over when the power drops or goes out entirely. But no one solution's perfect for everyone.

How much power do you need for a battery backup?

However, you'll need to make sure that your supply has enough output power for the job. In general, the best battery backups can output at least 400W. UPS models include several different features, but you'll want to focus on a couple, depending on what you want to back up.

Do you need a battery backup if you lose power?

Losing power is stressful, so don't let your offline router and computer add to it. The best battery backups can give you peace of mind that your electronics aren't in the dark while you call the electric company. Some might need a more powerful and versatile solution--particularly if you're looking to back up the equipment in your business.

Can a line-interactive battery backup work with sensitive gear?

According to the specs, the line-interactive battery backup can correct for "brownouts and overvoltages from 83V to 147V." At this price, though, it should be a surprise that it uses a simulated sine waveform (in backup mode) and may not perform adequately with sensitive gear.
