Can solar power help the Hathaway oil company?

I write about the global energy business. The Hathaway oil company is up to something -- using concentrated solar power for enhanced oil recovery. Natural gas has traditionally been the energy source to increase oil production. But in this case, solar power is used to generate steam, which goes downhole to loosen up the oil.

Can OPEC rig the price of solar?

Still, although the Chinese Communist Party cannot rig the price of sunlight as OPEC tries to rig that of oil, the fact that a vital industry resides in a single hostile country is worrying. It is a concern that America feels keenly, which is why it has put tariffs on Chinese solar equipment.

Are solar photovoltaics ready to power a sustainable future?
