Are solar panels a scam?

Here's how to steer clear of the scams: Do some research. Avoid solar companies that say a government program will cover the whole cost of solar panels -- or say they're from (or affiliated with) the government. These are lies. If you're looking at solar energy for your home, get quotes from reputable providers with a valid license.

How do I know if a solar company is a scam?

Look up existing scams. The Better Business Bureau has a free scam tracker. You can search by company name or keyword to see if there are any active scams in your area. Ask questions. A legitimate solar company will be happy to answer questions. If they get pushy or dodge your questions, that's a red flag.

Are solar companies a bait and switch scam?

This is essentially a classic bait and switch scam. A solar company uses the premise of getting 30% off solar to get homeowners to sign a lease or PPA, and then collects it for themselves. In extreme cases, solar scammers may even pose as utility or government officials trying to promote a new or unique solar program in your area.

How do I protect myself from solar scams?

Protecting yourself from solar scams means taking a proactive approach and following a few key strategies. One of the most effective ways to protect yourself from solar scams is to know the average cost of solar panels in your area. By researching prices, you can identify quotes that are suspiciously high or low.
